1. Scope

This Cookie Policy explains how EASYFY SOLUTION LTD. (Easyfy, we, us or our) uses cookies and similar technologies on easyfysolution.com. It should be read with our Website Privacy Policy.

A cookie is a small text file stored on a browser or device. Similar technologies include pixels, tags, local storage and software development tools that store information or recognize a device.

2. Our Approach to Consent

Strictly necessary technologies may be used without consent where law permits because they are required to provide a requested website function, maintain security or remember privacy choices. Where consent is required, optional analytics, functionality or advertising technologies will not be activated until the visitor makes an affirmative choice.

Easyfy does not treat continued browsing, silence or a pre-selected option as consent. Visitors can reject optional categories and later withdraw consent as easily as they gave it. Easyfy will configure the website's cookie banner or preference tool consistently with this policy before optional technologies are activated.

3. Cookie Categories

Strictly Necessary

These technologies support core functions such as security, fraud prevention, network management, form submission, session continuity and storage of a visitor's cookie preferences. Disabling them in a browser may cause parts of the website to stop working.

Preferences and Functionality

If enabled, these technologies remember choices such as language, display or other optional settings. They are used only with consent where required.

Analytics and Performance

If enabled, these technologies help us understand visits, referral sources, page use and website performance so we can improve the site. They are used only with consent where required. This policy does not state that Easyfy uses a particular analytics vendor unless that vendor is identified in the live cookie preference tool.

Advertising and Measurement

If enabled, these technologies measure campaigns or help tailor advertising across websites. They may be set by a third party and are used only with consent where required. Easyfy does not state that it uses advertising cookies unless they are actually deployed and disclosed in the live cookie preference tool.

4. First-Party and Third-Party Technologies

First-party cookies are set by Easyfy's website. Third-party technologies are provided by another organization, for example a hosting, security, embedded-content, analytics or advertising provider. A third party may process information under its own privacy terms. Easyfy reviews third-party technologies before deployment and discloses the relevant provider, purpose and duration in the cookie preference tool where required.

5. Duration

Session cookies expire when the browser is closed. Persistent cookies remain for a defined period or until deleted. Easyfy keeps cookie durations proportionate to their purpose. When technologies are active, their current names, providers and durations are identified through the website's cookie preference tool or linked cookie inventory.

6. Managing Cookies

Visitors can use the website's cookie banner or preference tool to accept, reject or change optional categories. Browser settings may also block or delete cookies, although blocking necessary cookies can affect functionality. Withdrawing consent does not make earlier consent-based processing unlawful, but the relevant optional technologies should stop operating for future visits after the preference is applied.

7. Changes

We may update this Cookie Policy and the live cookie inventory when technologies, providers or legal requirements change. We will request fresh consent where a change requires it.

8. Contact

Questions about cookies or privacy may be sent to the Privacy Officer at compliance@easyfysolution.com or to the registered office shown above.
